

but the beautiful boots were missing,—a soldier had exchanged a very coarse pair of army shoes for them. Rhett said that in all his troubles he had one consolation, that of knowing that no one of Sherman's men could get on those boots.

SHERMAN'S MEN DRIVING THE ENEMY OUT OF FAYETTEVILLE. (FROM A SKETCH MADE AT THE TIME.)

American history - 1865

224 Oct 1887

N. Y. PUBLIC LIBRARY
PICTURE COLLECTION